The Essay

The Industrial Revolution dismantled feudalism and changed the agrarian societies into industrial ones. This change brought people from farms to factories, changing the course of economies. Likewise, emergence of social media has changed the scope of communication. People have started preferring online communication instead of physical communication. The emergence of online platforms has provided opportunities of online diplomacy to the countries and digital conservation to the people. This fast and effective communication also helps in data sharing and setting of online businesses. Moreover, negative impacts of it ^{has} resulted in addiction where people waste time on e-devices instead of spending time ~~it~~ with family and friends. However,

The opponents argue that social media cannot destroy real-life communication because of physical requirement of people for health purposes, sharing cultural values and inspecting products for their businesses. Meanwhile, all these claims do not hold water as technology, especially social media is advancing in every field. Hence, social media platforms have disrupted the social sphere of life. Due to effective communication through digital platforms, it has transformed real-life communication into digital communication.
