

English Essay.

Gender Equality is a Myth.

1) Introduction.

2) Gender equality is a myth.

1) Gender equality is a myth because women continue to face gender-based violence.

2) ~~Male dominant~~ ~~non-dominant~~ ~~every~~ gender which exists on the planet.

3) Medical research is male-centric and it neglects other genders.

4) Only a few countries in Europe prioritize gender equality.

5) Developing countries fail to provide justice for women and other marginalized genders.

6) Transgenders do not get equal opportunities vis-à-vis men.

Need proper introduction and

7) ~~the~~ ~~so-called~~ ~~modern~~ ~~capitalist~~ ~~system~~.

Need better linkage among paragr exploits women.

8) Gender equality ceases to exist in health sector as well.

9) Less literature is available on gender equality ~~due to the nature of it to be a myth~~

10) Gender-related movements are seen with hatred around the world.

11) Social barriers continue to hinder women from acquiring education and getting employed.

12) Women are subjected to objectification even in contemporary era.

3) Conclusion.

A father was putting his daughter to sleep and after a minute asked passed and she innocently asked her father, "Daad, why can't I play outside like my brother?" Daad replied, "My little girl, your brother is a boy, while you are a girl." The little girl got curious and asked again, "Can my brother and I not be equal?". Her father ~~silenced~~ had no reply and ~~the~~ his silence filled the atmosphere. ~~Gender equality has~~

Gender equality has never existed

~~and it remains almost non-existent~~ in the twenty-first century. In contemporary era, women are subjected to gender-based violence. Moreover, masculinity dominates every gender which exists today. Furthermore, there is less research available on women's body. Not only this, but developing nations ~~do~~ fail to bring justice against the brutalities committed by men against other genders. Additionally, only a few European countries ensure gender equality. Unfortunately, transgender are deprived of their fundamental rights. The most popular economic system: Capitalism exploits women and undermines economic opportunities for them. Sadly, gender equality also remains absent in the health sector and only men have the opportunity to fully avail health benefits through hospitals. Undoubtedly, gender parity has become a myth in today's world.

Try to link one sentence with another one

Women are subjected to gender-based violence even today. Gender-based violence refers to brutal attacks or violence against a weaker gender. In the modern world, women are subjected to rapes, honour killing and domestic abuse, rendering the notion of gender equality useless. The sad part is that these cases go unreported due to weaker position of women in the society. According to Dawn reports, 1000 women are killed in the name of honour every year in Pakistan. Hence, women bear the brunt of gender-based violence.

Men still dominate other genders. Despite reiterating gender equality on all international platforms, male dominance appears to be stronger than ever. Patriarchy still exists and continues to control the life of women and other marginalized genders. Moreover, no other gender's freedom is widely accepted as compared to that of men. Judith Butler in her book, "Gender trouble" states that due to social construction of gender, women are given a weaker role in the society while men are considered to be aggressive and strong. Therefore, men enjoy a dominant role in the world.

Do have solid discussion like this

DATE: ___/___/___

Even medical research is limited for other genders. Medical research on different sexes allow doctors to address health problems of marginalised genders. In medical institutions, research on women's body is often neglected and they suffer from diseases like endometriosis and polycystic <sup>ovary</sup> syndrome. On top of that, such negligence, reduces their productivity in life. A senior doctor based in a hospital in Karachi was saddened to announce that ~~around~~ 40% of Pakistani women <sup>are</sup> ~~are~~ anaemic and no research is being conducted to address the issue. Hence, men's health is prioritized in medical research.

The European region has gained momentum in attaining gender equality. Europe is also considered one of the peaceful regions of the world for women. First, these regions have the best healthcare facilities for women. Second, they have the best job opportunities as well. According to a magazine, Finland and Sweden have the best healthcare facilities for women and mortality rate among remains low. Therefore, a few

It means gender equality is not a myth in developed nations

Countries in Europe have been successful in achieving gender equality.

Even the horrendous judicial system of developing countries fail to provide justice to other genders. The sole purpose of establishing a judicial system is to provide speedy justice. Contrarily, women have to wait for years for their cases to be heard. Furthermore, there is no proper implementation of gender-based laws, in developing countries. A ~~media~~ BBC report highlighted the life of a woman named Fakhra, who committed suicide after the judicial system failed to hold her culprit accountable for throwing acid at her face in Pakistan. Thus, judicial system of developing countries show negligence towards the weaker genders.

It is also very unfortunate that transgenders are not treated equally. Transgenders are those people who transform themselves into the opposite gender due to hormonal abnormalities. Unluckily, there is less acceptance of trans people in every community. Resultantly, their socially constructed identity prevents them from earning their livelihood like a normal human being. Human Rights Watch

DATE: ___/___/___

Vocalized about an Egyptian transgender woman who was confined in a cell for a year and she endured excruciating pain and punishment and ~~abuse~~ by the police. Therefore, transgender are deprived of their rights.

The modern capitalist system successfully exploits women. Capitalist system had been introduced by the West, which gives the state the power to control businesses. Through capitalist system, women are exploited in the form of cheap labour. Additionally, their wages are ~~too~~ deliberately kept low to divide the society. Marxist feminism has condemned the capitalist form of economic system which has weakened the position of women in job markets. Henceforth, capitalism undermines women in their professional lives.

Gender equality also fails to influence health sectors. However, leading a healthy life is a basic right. Unfortunately, there are less qualified gynaecologists in developing countries which lead to high mortality rate among women. Additionally, trans people are denied medical treatment because of their gender. A German trans woman stated in a report that she was denied access to healthcare facilities because the staff was afraid of touching her. Thereby, health sector lags behind in gender equality around the world.

U have researched the topic well good

Due to little of ~~no~~ literature on gender equality, ~~renders~~ the concept a myth. ~~is~~ considered a myth. Literature is a comprehensive set of <sup>available</sup> ideas related to a particular subject. The literature is dominated by masculine ideas and norms. Furthermore, other genders are not given the required space to contribute to the current literature according to the book, "Globalization of World Politics", theories of International Relations ~~are~~ follow a patriarchal pattern as well. The theories consider man to be the most powerful creature on earth, while projecting all other genders as weak. Thus, less literature is available on gender equality.

Gender-related movements are also seen with a narrow vision. Gender-related movements are meant to liberate a gender from brutalities and abuse. These movements are often ridiculed on social media and on print media. Additionally, the actual purpose of such movements go unnoticed. According to a lecturer at Islamic University, the Aurat March in Pakistan is often ridiculed, while rape victims<sup>and</sup> acid attack victims ~~and~~ go unnoticed and unheard. Therefore, gender-based movements are not given importance, they require.

Social barriers continue to pollute women's life around the globe. Social barriers refer to invisible restriction which prevent an individual from progressing in life. Women are denied their <sup>right</sup> ~~access~~ of education due to early marriages. Not only this, but they are also not allowed to do jobs because social barriers norms solely allow men to work outside.

World Bank report showed that early marriages will cost around 30 billion dollars for the developing world. Thus, women's growth remains stagnant due to social barriers.

Women are objectified even in the twenty-first century. Objectification refers to the treatment of a living being as an object. First, women's private parts are ~~not~~ ~~discussed~~ and their beauty is discussed everywhere. Moreover, this objectification deprives them of achieving milestones because they ~~fall~~ get busy in fulfilling the beauty criteria set forth. A research scholar has stated that even Palestinian poets highlight the beauty of a woman's lips, body and eyes, instead of emphasizing their significant role in the society.

One cannot deny the fact that gender equality is a myth. The concept has been undermined by social and cultural norms which decide gender roles. Gender equality is a myth because it fails to exist in health sectors of ~~thousands~~ many states. Moreover, lack of literature on gender equality renders the notion powerless. Not only this, but gender-based movements are also <sup>beaten</sup> <sup>unfairly</sup> <sup>around</sup> the world. Unfortunately, the presence of social barriers hinders <sup>women's</sup> progress of women in different fields. In addition, the women and other genders are subjected to objectification due to their weaker position in the society. The modern economic system never fails to exploit women and their financial strength stability. Most importantly, even transgender are marginalized and and they fail to come at par with men due to lesser opportunities. This distinction between men and all the other genders can be eradicated by slowly breaking the social barriers. ~~they~~ provide uncountable advantages to men. The agenda is to provide equal rights to all the existing genders to ~~gender~~ improve economic growth and empower each and every individual who lives on this planet.

Do not exactly reproduce what u have written in introduction

Try to give essence