

Gender equality is a myth

Outline

I- Introduction

Thesis statement: Gender inequality is visible in various parts of the world, other than many genders are discriminated under the patriarchal society in their social, political and economic arena. On contrary, some people argue that it is a reality. However, gender equality is a myth still in 21st century.

II- How gender equality is a myth

- A. Patriarchy is still in practice in the society
- B. Third gender discrimination is visible in the various parts of the world
- C. Male dominance in politics is clearly present
- D. Less representation of other genders in institutions is a reality
- E. Gender disparity in economy is also present in the societies

E. Gender based wages in work places are reality

III- Some people argue that gender equality is a reality

A. Equal facilitation of health for all genders clearly shows the gender equality as a reality

B. Rise in women equality in education is an indication of gender equality

C. Rise in women voter population shows women participation equally

IV- Gender based differences in the world are real in essence

A. Third world countries women and other genders even have no access to health units

B. Women have no access to primary school in the under developed countries

C. Rise women voter population even is not an equal representation/women voters

V- Conclusion

The nature and its laws have given an equal representation to its subjects in the universe. The Sun rises in the morning and sets in the evening to give the chance to Moon to shine. Similarly stars shine equally and represent themselves in the human population it is not seen an equality as like the nature. In the human population patriarchy is dominant, and it enjoys its dominance through discriminating the two genders and political power. Similarly, less representation of women or other genders in politics give them a good little leverage for capturing the economy and setting the gender based wages on work place. On the contrary, some pro says that, healthcare facilities, ~~improvement, and equal education and~~ ~~role in women voter population are the~~ indicators of gender equality. However, it is a utopia, because the third world's women are still under malnutrition and have no even access to the basic health units. Similarly they have not an equal access to even primary education. Therefore rise in women in population do not justify the equality of genders. That's why gender inequality is a fact and discrimination in political, social and economic arena is visible. Therefore the contrary claims are not a factual reality in the world.

To begin with, the patriarchal practice in society witness the gender equality is a myth. The patriarchy is dominant on the women's basic and fundamental rights. It is visible through women's gender based violence and the psychological torture from their male partners. Similarly women seek to the hands of her male partner for food, shelter and her basic needs. For example, a woman in a patriarchal society is under the dominance of either her father, brother or her male partner. Her life is restricted to cross wall boundaries. It is being practiced in many parts of the world as like, African and Asian countries. Therefore, it is evident that gender equality is a myth due to the dominance of patriarchy.

The above discussion shows that gender equality is a myth but there are multiple counter arguments which shows that gender equality is a reality. No need of such transition

First, the health equality is present in the societies which justify the gender equality as a reality. Healthcare facilities, ~~opportunities~~ availability for women and genders of all types give a in private and public sectors the betterment of women health and equal opportunity to utilize for themselves. For example, various societies or countries, either give free health care facilities or subsidies via health department.

to facilitate ~~we~~ all genders equally. So that everyone can benefit from this ~~subsidies~~. Therefore, it is a ~~fact~~ that gender equality is a reality because having equal opportunity of healthcare.

~~The above discussion shows that gender equality is a reality. However, there are multiple ~~counters~~ arguments which deny that gender equality is a reality.~~

Women in third world countries
Firstly, ~~the third world countries' women are under the malnutrition and they have no access to basic healthcare which highly indicates that gender equality is a myth. The under developed countries lack the infrastructure of healthcare. In third world countries women and other minority genders die due to the general gender specific diseases like vaginal problems, menstrual issues, malfeeding issues, lack of food, lack of pads and cleanlines. These~~ problems kill many women and children annually. According to the United Nations women development report, approximately one million women die annually due to lack of healthcare facilities. The most of the death records are from African and Asian societies. This report shows that gender equality is utopia because of the basic healthcare absence in 3rd world countries.

~~One paragraph from each section, with transition.~~

Plz try to have transition of ideas