Q. 2 Make a précis of the following passage and suggest a suitable title.

(15+5=20)

The issue of Schengen countries rejecting visa applications from Pakistani citizens is akin to preparing for a high-profile event, only for the host to shut the door saying, "Your outfit's crease isn't perfect." Applying for a Schengen visa feels like packaging your dreams into a file and presenting them to the world, yet the response often suggests you've attempted the world's biggest conspiracy. "Your documents were incomplete," "Your bank balance seems suspicious," or "Your intentions don't seem right"—these remarks feel as if a teacher had dismissed a student's exam without reading it, declaring, "This one's bound to fail."

On the other hand, if a citizen from a Western country seeks a Pakistani visa, we roll out the red carpet. "Come, enjoy our culture, savor our biryani, and don't forget to lecture us about our problems on your way back!" Perhaps Schengen countries think Pakistani citizens will cause upheaval across Europe, even though half our energy is spent paying visa fees and submitting endless documents. If granted a visa, the rest of it is exhausted contemplating, "Why did we even come here?"

Schengen countries need to realize that Pakistani citizens are human too, not some dangerous extraterrestrial beings. Perhaps they'll understand this when they themselves stand in line for a Pakistani visa someday.

Q. 3 Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

Globalization is viewed by its proponents as a process of cementing economic, cultural and political bonds between peoples of different countries of the world. One may regard it as a process by which they are welded into a single world society, to be termed as global society. It means internationalization of production and labour leading to integration of economies of developing and developed countries into global economy. To quote Rosabeth M. Kanter, "The world is becoming a global shopping mall in which ideas and products are available everywhere at the same time."

Globalization is a natural outcome of computer networking and electronic mass communication. Information technology has made it possible for nations of the world to contact one another beyond their national borders. Besides, globalization is also promoted through the growth and proliferation of multinational companies and corporations that operate as transporter networks. Anyhow the flow of capital technology and labour across the borders of countries has accentuated the process of globalization.

Deregulation, liberalism and privatization being assiduously pursued in the developing countries are some other manifestations of globalization. These countries are opening their economies to follow these trends. The size of the public sector is shrinking for the private sector to assume an increasingly important role in the economic development of the Third World countries. The downsizing of the public sector is in line with the spirit of market economy. This is suggested as a measure to cover up their fiscal deficit.
