

Make a précis of the following passage and suggest a suitable heading:
Culture, in human -- former over bords.

Colonialism and culture of ancient societies
Culture has two features: formal and ideological. Latter is the output of former and both constitute social structure. The forms of culture are changed with modifications in social structure. The cultural problems of underdeveloped countries have to be recognised in the existence of social problems. These social problems are confined progress, colonialist domination and outdated social structure.

European Imperialism affected countries, some of which were feudal societies and others had to move beyond primitive pastoral tribalism. Social and cultural was stopped due to political grievances. The culture of ancient societies was limited to small privileged class and seldom connected with general masses. Feudal and tribal societies were living side-by-side and had adopted common practices which were attached with other rivals. Colonialism focused on dividing ancient nations into different groups and this structure was transferred to newly independent countries.
