Q. Make a précis of the following passage and suggest a suitable title:

With the innovative findings of Sigmund Freud in the field of Psychology, particularly with reference to unconsciousness in 1905, the Western art and literature of the 20th century started to emphasize the individualism, emotional charge, percipience, psychological expression and the world of dreams. Cubism, expressionism and surrealism introduced modern art to the essentials of human mind and its hidden shades. Our artists have also absorbed their revolutionary trends along with the conventional styles. The artist has been enamoured by the realistic technique in painting. He tries to communicate his viewers, the psychological emotional and perceptual aspects of human life through his artistry. This has created a unique combination of apparently realistic canvases with deep meanings underneath. While soft clouds against the blue sky, windows and door openings towards or inside the wonder lands imagined fantasy and the tangible objects used as metaphors denote the spiritual or metaphysical world.

~~Title:~~ Effects of Psychology on Art.

The findings of Sigmund Freud influenced the Western art and literature of the 20th century. ~~positively.~~ It reveals the human mind and behaviour. Their artist also inspired by his idea. Even their paintings shows the true essence of life by drawing different things. These represented the metaphysical phenomenon of the world.
