

Precise (CSS 2006)

Topic:-

Greek philosophers: the mystery of knowledge.

Precise:-

The Greek philosophers were interested in non-pragmatic knowledge. For instance, pre-Socratics believed in observation and experience rather than dialectism. Further, Democritus picture explored the reality of the external world. Thales was interested in worldly interests. Anaxagoras, Darwin and Socrates made efforts in studying of sun, stars and worldly nature. Plato was one of the predecessors who prioritized philosophy as subject of wisdom love. With Aristotle the scope of philosophy was widened, in order to face every problem of place and science. That is why, the real function of philosophy was to acquire knowledge about human character and human life.