Three dimensions of Gender

Understanding Gender-body Prospective

When a baby born we assume its sex basis on its genital. After assuming Sex, Society persume gender of that baby.

According to neurology, Cell biology Our brain play a key role in how we each experience and percieve our gender.

Gender is not specifically just musculine or feminine. it is much complex than just there two catagories. it depends how a person experience itself. How is her/his internal emotions. In term of neurology and psychology, Gender is basically how person feel about themselver

Understanding Gender Identity

Perspective

The Name we use to convey our gender is a gender identity. we usually familier with two catagories of gender musculin and feminine. But actually it is very complex phenomenon of we see the history. Society has seen and Continue to see, gender as spectrum and it is not limited to the two possibilities

According to american academy of pediatries, " By the age four, most children have stable sense of their gender identity"

We attached specific name to a specific gender. that become its identity. it is very difficult for a person to divert from his identity.

Understanding gender - Social perspective

Gender

It is Socially constructed phenomenon Biologically a person may be a male or a female. Gender is basically Society's expectation from a person. When a baby born, Society persume specific role to that baby. Than throughout the life person have to do that all. it is very difficult for a person to break those boundries. If a person having Some about opposite Sex Like female for male it is very normal for the Society if he or she has feeling towards the Same Society will not be agreed to accept. Similarly Language is gendered. Society demand from to speak politly even from the childhood, when a baby born society specify some colors, toys for the specific baby. (or specific sex). And if a child express gender outside the line of norms of society, society did not agree that Stem the child, invisible him, these things start even the child's own home. It is very difficult for a person in to live if he has imp emotion outside the line describe by the society.

Attempt these by giving subheadings
