Importance of Urban Green spaces

In cities, green spaces are an escape from hustle and bustle. Parks are havens for relaxation. Parks provide habitat for wildlife exhibiting balance between urban development and environmental protection. City parks foster community bonds being centre of leisure and social activities. Except leisure, parks contribute to overall well being. Access to nature within cities is blessing for mental health. Challenge is to balance urbanization and maintaining green spaces. Urban planning is necessary where human and environmental health is prioritized. The green places in cities exhibit the co-existence of human progress and environmental protection.
