

Not only charity but women empowerment also begins at home.

1- Introduction

2. Defining the essence of the term 'Charity begins at home.'

3. Deciphering the term 'women empowerment'

4. How women empowerment begins at home.

4a. Standing against Abuse.

[Reuters reports
 ↳ 54% Girls tolerate abuse bcz they have seen their mother doing the same]

4b. Treating the women equally as the sons of the house.

[Tehreem Ranjha
 ↳ online webinar
 • Making the women Khudmukhtar]

4c. Making the women financially independent

Mahira Khan

↳ women independence comes with financial independence

4d. Fostering confidence in women.

Nemrah Ahmed in her

Novel Namal

accentuated that women can't grow until the men foster confidence in them

4e - Challenging traditions/
gender roles

Research Paper ↓

↳ women empowerment:
Breaking stereotype

4f - Providing women
the emotional support.

UN women report

↓

emotional backing from peers, family enhance confidence

5. Impediments in the way of women empowerment

i- lack of awareness and education

ii- social and cultural Norms

iii- Financial dependency.

6. Conclusion.

Add more arguments
Address it comprehensively

'Home' is often called as an incubator. Elizabeth May once said that 'Home is the incubator ^{either} of children of high moral character or of criminals.'

Her saying accentuates the significance of home in a child's life. Similarly,

Sir Thomas Browne articulated that 'charity begins at home'. He emphasizes that charity starts from close relatives before extending it outward.

Both examples emphasize that everything begins at home and home paves way for new opportunities. This means that a major concern, i.e. women empowerment also begins at home. As per Reuters Report, 54% of the girls tolerate abuse because they have seen their mother facing the same thing. This actively demonstrates that women empowerment begins at home.

It begins

↑ by making the women financially independent, fostering confidence in them and by challenging the

Date: _____

Day: _____

traditional roles. However there are numerous impediments such as lack of awareness, social and cultural norms, and financial dependency. In conclusion women empowerment begins at home however there are numerous impediments in its way.