

Preci 20/8

The author says that war is the main reason for the collapse of every civilization. In the past, states ~~have~~ engaged in war as its benefits were considered more than its sufferings. But like every evil, ^{war} it has its way of selling itself to war-lovers. It shows its truest colours when societies reach their potential to utilize economic resources and military might to ~~create~~ ^{wreak} havoc and destruction. Efforts have been made in the past to curb these deadly conditions by adopting alternative paths. (An individual)* As salvation cannot be achieved without individual self-conscience. An individual can either refuse to be part of the war waged by their government or convince the states to resist violence and to remove Idea is ok.

the war cause. The author believes that ^{the latter} later is more impactful than the former.

Topic:- ① War and the collapse of civilizations. /

② War, a great evil.

Word count: 132