Title: "power of Wisdom
Over Wealth"

A rich man without education or refinement cannot enjoy literature or nature. ^{He} ~~and~~ uses his wealth only for basic pleasures, showing he is not truly powerful. His power is like that of a brute, causing harm instead of building or improving. In contrast, a learned and noble-minded man values knowledge over wealth and views the world with calmness. A wise man finds joy in understanding the world and its history, making him powerful and respected even by the wealthy.
