

In Islamic history, women of the status of Hazrat Khadija (R.A) are very rare. She made the practical life of the women easier and of grace. This is addition to her grace that she is the first to accept Islam. But her greatness remains oblivious to our eyes, that she chose a personality for herself, who is known as the "Exalted Orphan". Being the richest lady of Arabia, she rejected the affluent Arab lords who sought her hand in marriage, and recorded the unparalleled example of love, fidelity and sacrifice. For nourishing the family of the Holy Prophet (PBUH), she worked selflessly and sacrificed her riches. Today we observe the day of women's liberty, rights and equality. But we have neither been able to mirror the social character of that great woman to the world nor devising a method to enforce it in the society.
