A visit to Cherokee

Last May, I wanted to go for a exotic tour. Joan gave me the idea to go to Cherokee, and we went for the Cherokee. We visited the town Qualla Boundary. Its beautiful mountain scenery was like paradise. The Oconalufee Indian village showed the life style of 18th century and Qualla Boundary shows the Cherokee part to the tourists. These shops were filled with rubber, Ericon, turkey feathers and tents. We met middle-aged English speaker George. He invited us for lunch. George story for hardly managing living by cutting firewoods makes me feel affluent. George told us Cherokee do not depend on trade but also on other means of income like Bingo weekend. Our last stop was the Qualla Boundary where arts and symbols of Cherokee showed. I missed that area.
