PSYCHE OF LOVE :-

In the above given passage the writer emphasizes on the psychological and creative outburst in a child's personality, as a result of teacher's amiable and tender attitude. According to the writer, rather than regarding the child as a means of fulfilling duty and some sort of 'social - endeavour', he advises to give children a show of compassion by cherishing teacher who now find it hard due to their overworked and burnt out lives. He also provides a remedy to this hitch, to impart children freedom and less psychological damage, by letting education of young to be undertaken by individuals, who spend their days away from toddlers, for two hours a day. Children should be led on a road paved by wisdom, politeness and docility.
