In Northern Europe, winter weather makes the life fine. Humans feel comfortable in absence of difficulties while hardship creates more troubles to work because it minimizes the energy. Normal cold weather gives physical energy and power to work more productively. People belonging to normal cold weather work with ease and manage to keep their houses warm by using clothes accordingly. They enjoy sunny weather in an open area having delicious meals. The people in equatorial region hardly need some clothes to wear where they spend their days under a shady tree with limited food. Life changes as per the change of the season. The summer weather makes the life difficult while the winter weather makes it easier and more comfortable for the people to manage their affairs.
