All degrees are going to become vague in coming three years. Speed of technology and desire to get benefit from it, is so fast that our previous informations, sources of information; even syllabus and subjects, all are becoming irrelevant. when each type of information become available on the palm sized screen then skill overcomes knowledge and Action took preference over idea. Now concerns have arised that in coming years how story tellers on minitabes will ~~joint~~ their audience with their address and at the same time how teachers will teach the universe in the small class room to the students who get benefits from the internet?
