

Traditional Family Structure Cannot bear the challenges of modern world

- I Introduction
- II Traits of traditional family Structure
 - Patriarchy
 - Ban on women job
 - No education for women

III Traditional family Structure and Challenges of modern world

(A) Socio-economic challenges

- (i) Single bread winner
- (ii) Large family concept
- (iii) Least women participation in economic activities
- (iv) Hindrance in women education
- (v) Children responsibility for women only
- (vi) NO agency of women in
- (vii) family planning

III

Traditional Family structure needs to be changed as per modern world

- (A) Shared responsibilities
- (B) Small family for women
- (C) Education for women
- (D) Women agency in decisions
- (E) Proper health facilities for women
- (F) Consider women participation as need of society
- (G) Primitive approaches should be abolished

Conclusion

Do not limitise the topic to women empowerment only

The world is progressing so rapidly, ^{that} it has been shifted from primitive approaches to modern ones. Requirements of modern world do not match with traditional family structure. Old traditions need to be changed to cater the advance challenges of modern world.

Modern world focus on equal approaches and small size of family. Men and women both have to play their respective roles to cater the challenges. In this regard women participation, according to their abilities and capabilities, is mandatory. Traditional family structure has (partly) patriarchal roots and is against women empowerment. Those nations, who have recognised the participation of women in every walk of life, are leading the world.