Political instability: A cause of economic loss in Pakistan.

To begin with, one of the major causes that has yielded economic scarcity in Pakistan is political instability. It has been a serious concern to country since its inception. However, Pakistan is rich in resources but poor in management. The phase of military interventions, and ~~unselected~~ undemocratic setups in the country have weakened country's economic profile. Moreover, some elected governments did not show any flexibility to strengthen their powers related to economic improvement. Additionally, <sup>the</sup> country depended on foreign assistance, and still remains at the same position. None of any elected governments paid heed to tackle this issue. In a nutshell, Pakistan's internal issues, like political instability is also responsible for losing economic image of country.
