

Date: _____

M T W T F S

TITLE:

The Genesis And Recognition Of Divinity In Ancient Greece

To envisage future and fortune, the human urge of connecting with the supreme authority that authoritate it originated and thus, familiarity with the god's will enlightened the human. In earliest Greece, the soothsayers with god gifted divine knowledge used to interpret the god's will explicitly by oracles through keen observation of godly implications in their surroundings, among which dream-decoding and palmistry were renowned. For these, Tiresias and other Greek soothsayers were well-known but apart from such practices, mostly the divine wills and messages were <sup>directly</sup> sent by gods to the prophet or prophetess who then delivered them to the believers. In this way, Greek oracles functioned while specific oracle were allied with specific god among which Apollo, Delphi and Dodona of god Zeus were eminent.

Total Word Count = 340 words

Precised Word Count = 170 + 3 words

Modern Day Commercials; An Object Of Ridicule.

Regardless of the audience objections on television commercials for being irrational, the companies persist to advertise them based on unideal themes. The unrealistic portrayal of these commercials often make them ridiculous and displeasing. The impractical show in these commercials, is non-sensical in real-life. These advertisers continue to show an inexistent version of domestic and societal relationships. What about viewers, compels them to keep on investing millions of dollars into such commercials? They may be unaware, that these glossy and cluttering commercials do not promote the product at all. The viewership, may be, encouraging and attractive for the product's manufacturers and the core reason of hiring advertisers for their product's promotion. But actually, such commercials are viewed either for fun or viewers can't skip them.

(Word Count = 120 + 3 words)