Topic: Benefits of Laziness

According to the author, busy people are mainly responsible for all the evils / conflicts ~~in~~ in the World. These people do not know the consequences of their actions and decisions. Although the World is full of energetic people, but mostly they are misguided. The distortions in the World are not because of lazy people but because of active ones. If in July 1914, people belonged to every sect of life had refused to work, there would have been peace in the World. Similarly, instead of going to sign the treaty of Versailles, the influential people had refused to do nothing, the World would be in a better position. Even in the contemporary time, if half of the European politicians took a short break from their responsibilities, the World would get benefit from it. Moreover, certain religious sects chaired conferences, but instead of targeting the core issues, they started criticising ladies dressing and their dancing. They would recover their mentality if supine; gazing at the sky.
