One of my classfellow slapped me. The people who use force are cowards. Because they have no arguments or evidences to support their point of view or stance. Wise people should avoid such cowards, they are actually ignorant. Cowards are afraid of reasoning. They try to be heroes by using force. They scream during conversation, continuously increase pitch, disorganize room to show anger in verbal fight. Domestic abusers are common example of such kind of people. They cannot face reality. There are many possible reasons to use force such as: Narcissism, Bi-polar personality disorder, lack of ethics, fixed mindset to win every argument and controlling nature. Such kind of people can be handled affectionately, by neurolinguistic programming, and by maintaining a distance. And always argue with them in room full of people.
