Q:7 Translation

Apparently, the Western culture is the strongest culture of the world today, and its principles are making it the strongest. The Western culture has two big principles: One principle relates to humanity, the universe, and life and the second principle advocates the democratic notions, human rights, and rule of law. This culture is based on scientific philosophy. Resultantly, today's ^{amazing} scientific progress is possible. But Muslims have neglected this. This is the result of this scientific philosophy that industrial revolution in the West flourished and became the strongest physically.
