

Is environment going to listen our promises?

Outline

1. Introduction

These statements: Unfortunately, environment is not going to listen our promises. But, another school of thought believes otherwise, however, the given evidences are not substantial. Therefore, it is beyond any doubt that environment is not going to listen our promises.

2. A glance at the contemporary age of environmental politics

3. Environment is not going to listen our promises

- ~~Net zero myth by global North~~
- ~~Massive green house gases emissions by developed world~~
- ~~Dead policies on reduction of carbon emission~~
- ~~Exploitation of natural environment in developing countries~~
- ~~Loss of natural biodiversity at global stage~~

Irrelevant arguments

4. Environment is going to listen our promises

- A major step towards global environmental funds
- Reduction of carbon emission by carbon trading policy
- Successful global agreements on carbon emission agenda
- Global forestation and reforestation for sustainable environment

e) Promotion of clean energy projects for sustainable environment

5- Environment is definitely not going to listen our promises

a) Inefficiency of global North in collection of environmental funds

b) Extreme rise of global temperature, threatening natural environment

c) Weak performance on carbon emission agenda

d) Massive environmental catastrophe, threatening very existence life on Earth

e) Imbalance of energy mix, disturbing environment

6- Conclusion

Arguments should be according to the topic

Attention Grabber:

As per the United Nations on Environment and Development in 2023, "The world temperature is reached at 1.09 degree centigrade, which is alarming situation for the globe." (The UNEAD, 2023). Have environmental promises neglected? The above statement highlights stark reality of environmental promises, which are not going to listen.