

Make proper file before uploading it above all revolution and decentralization of power. In the illiterate nations, democracy proves to be the worst form of government. This is not only corroborates the true essence of democracy but also affects nation in certain ways. Considering, public unawareness regarding political rights with no political development, Hierarchy of political dynasties, incompetent government of demagogues, rhetoric politics of personal gains, and furnishing idea of accountability and transparency vanishes. In order to foster democracy in a nation, nations should prioritize the agenda of education at government, educational reforms by providing free and equal education to all. Thus, democracy is the worst kind of governance in illiterate masses, as illiteracy blurs the true essence of democracy having no public awareness regarding their rights.

- 4) Way forward: Recommendations for eliminating illiteracy in order to get to the essence of democracy
- (a) Prioritizing the agenda of education at government ✓
  - (b) Educational reforms ✓
  - (c) Free of cost education ✓
- ⑤ Conclusion

Democracy, the heartbeat of nation, beats with the voices of its own people, whether through traditional votes or digital clicks, the essence of democracy lies in the hands of its people. For the perpetual pursuit of representations and equitable society. But when it comes to the illiterate nations, the whole idea starts revolving in the intricate pursuit of personal gains of politicians. As main features of democracy include: literate masses, frequent inter-party and intra-party elections, Free and Fair and above all devolution and decentralization of power. In the illiterate nations, democracy proves to be the worst form of government. This not only vices but essence of democracy but also affects nation in certain ways. Considering, public unawareness regarding political rights with no political development, Hierarchy of political dynasties, incompetent government of demagogues, rhetoric politics of personal gains, and furnishing idea of accountability and transparency vanishes. In order to foster democracy in a nation, nations should prioritize the agenda of education at government, educational reforms by providing free and equal education to all. Thus, democracy is the worst kind of governance in illiterate masses, as illiteracy blurs the true essence of democracy having no public awareness regarding their rights.

- 4) Way forward: Recommendations for eliminating illiteracy in order to get to the essence of democracy
- (a) Prioritizing the agenda of education at government
  - (b) Educational reforms
  - (c) Free of cost education
- ⑤ Conclusion

Democracy, the heartbeat of nation, beats with the voices of its own people, whether through traditional votes or digital clicks, the essence of democracy lies in the hands of its people, promise for the perpetual pursuit of representations and equitable society. But when it comes to the illiterate nations, the whole idea starts revolving in the intricate pursuit of personal gains of politicians. As main features of democracy include: literate masses, frequent inter-party and intra-party elections, Free and Fair and