Translation:

In Pakistan millions of young people belong to Generation Z. This is the generation that was born after 2000 and has now reached to the age of 22 to 24. Globally, this generation is generally considered to be physically weaker and mentally more fragile compared to previous generations. They have grown up in an era where the use of technology has been more prevalent than ever before. This generation has matured while utilizing technology extensively. Their environment consists of the internet, mobile phones, tablets, TV channels and social media. This generation has largely been raised by social media rather than elders. Globally, this generation faces a common issue; they have less patience and more anger. Their physical health is generally weak and frail. In terms of financial independence, this generation is taking longer than previous ones to stand their own feet.
