Q

"A woman is the full circle. Within her is the power to create, nurture and transform." is said by Diane Marie Child. There is a hadith that "seeking knowledge is an obligation upon every muslim" (male and female). Further more, when ever Prophet Muhammad (PBUH) daughter Fatima (RA) is used to come to prophet house, he stand up, kiss her hand and leave his place to his daughter Fatima to sit. Addition to this, women have a pivotal part in the society. In a home women is a leader to maintain the house affairs. She also nurture her children. She also take part in financial affair of the family. She is a house wife and a doctor, manager, chairperson, and sportswomen at a same time. In short, she is a leader for the society.

Moving forward, she also play a vital role in wars also. In the battle of Uhud, Nusaybah bint Ka'ab (also known as Ammarah) defended the prophet Muhammad (PBUH) with great courage.

The prophet (PBUH) said about her "From where can anyone get courage like you, O Umm Ammarah!" (Seerah book).

Additionally, women played a key role in the world war II by working in factories.

Side by side, in 1965 war of Lanka Tarunm Aloor Jehan boost the moral of soldiers in the frontline of war by singing anthems. Hence, it is clear from the above discussion that any nation of the world cannot develop without the role of women. Women participation is the backbone for security and stability of a nation.

To begin with, women has a significant hand in the economy of a nation. For example when industrialization started in the west, they were short of worker in the market. Then women take their part in the work place of the industries. Women were a cheap labour at that time, so industries of the west flourish rapidly. likewise in initial stage of Islam when Prophe Muhammad starts preaching Islam. The Holy prophet wife Hazrat Khadija R.A helped the Holy prophet financially by giving all of her wealth. She was a rich business women of that time. Adding to this, Bangladesh give opportunity to women to take part in work force of the industries. Now, the economy of Bangladesh is stronger than Pakistan.

Further, Women has a substantial role in the arm forces a nation. If a women given a chance to she can achieve a big goal as a man can. for example major general Aliqar Johar of Pakistan reached to such milestone. Besides, women has also played vital role in world war II. In the battle of Uhud women also took part. Women give first Aid to injured companions of the Holy Prophet (PBUH). Those Sahabiyas give water and help them to take them to safer place. In current times, Ayesha Farooq is the first women fighter pilot of Pakistan. To cut long story short, women has the capability to impact national security and stability of a nation.

For good measure, women play her brilliant role in the society and family. Women in a family perform as an administrator. She take care of his family. Specially she plays pivotal role in the upbringing of her kids. Someone has rightly said that a educated women can educate a whole nation. In a simple word women is the leader of the society. In a nutshell, women has an equal portion as a man has in the stability and security of a nation.

Moving forward, women also has place in the politics of a nation. For instance, Benazir Bhutto was an eloquent leader. Adding to this, ex PM of New Zealand Jacinda Ardern is a great leader.

She shows her sympathy to women's rights after the terrorist attacks in a mosque in New Zealand. Women have the ability as man has to be present the Pakistani PM Modi is running a state. It is a myth that women cannot be a leader. Women can lead as a man or even more betterly. In a short women is competence as a man to share her part in the security and stability of a nation.

Yet, women have also shown their command in sport as well in a country like Pakistan. Saina Nehwal is one of the world best badminton players. This is proof that women has also the same capability as a men have. Like wise Sana Mir is also a brilliant sport person in the world cricket. In short women have a portion in the stability and security of a nation.

Moreover, women has a expressive part in the education as well.
 If a woman is educated, she can give her share in the economy and security of a nation. For instance a doctor, engineer, teacher, airhostess and pilot woman can boost economy of a nation. She can also strengthen the security of her nation. In a case, an liberated woman can also work in intelligence agency. She can be a spy agent. To wrap up, women has a vital role in the security and stability of a nation.

In addition to this, women are the backbone of health sector. A woman can a scientist like Marie Curie and Rosalind Franklin. Women as a doctor and nurse are the backbone of health sector. A woman patient is more comfortable with woman doctor in a conservative Society. To wind up, Women have an equal share in the security and stability of a nation.

Beside this, according to UN 39% (2007) of the world work force is women in different sectors. Norway Polesi said,

"Women are the leaders everywhere you look from CEO who runs a Fortune 500 company to housewife, who raises her children and heads her household.

But country was built by strong women and we will continue to make down walls and defy stereotypes." To sum up, Women is in all frontlines from stability and security of a nation.

Finally, Women also perform in eradicating poverty in the society. A woman can also do a job, business, swimming,

(12)
and a chairperson. So that, she can help financially of a family. This dislocate poverty in the society. Poverty is the root of many crimes and terrorism. In lastly, it is crystal clear, women is in every frontlines for the security and stability of a nation.

There are some challenges for women in the society.
In the upcoming Paragraph there are some challenges and suggestions to overcome those issues.

Firstly, In many nation specially in third world, women have not proper access of education. The drop out ratio of girls in primary level school is so high. In addition to this,

In some nations the government is unable to give basic education. Hence, it is the high time to educate women. A state need to keep atleast more than 2% of its GDP For education.

Finally, equal opportunities must be given to women all over the world. In a case, In Afghanistan Taliban interim government is not allowing women to ~~to~~ take part in workplace. Equal job opportunities must be given to women. Women must allow to take part in politics, sports and in every possible field. To sum up, Women have their due share in the security and stability of a nation.

To conclude, women have the capability to give their share in the stability and security of a nation. A woman can be a fighter pilot like Ayesha Farooq. She can serve in army forces like Nigar Johar. She can participate in wars like battle of Mead and World War II. A woman can play the role of leader in a society like Benazir Bhutto, Hillary Clinton and many more. She can be a peace maker like Mala Fousefzai. Finally, women are strong enough to place her share in stability and security of a nation in every frontlines. "Feminism is not about making women stronger. Women are already strong. It is about changing the way the world perceives that strength."

G.D. Anderson.
