

ESSAY OUTLINE.

Cooperation not competition would lead the world towards peace & prosperity.

(I) Introduction:

The world has always been in dire need of peace and prosperity which can only be attained by cooperation.

(II) Cooperation will eradicate ill will and would lead to states working together.

(III) This would promote peace and prosperity in the world.

(IV) Cooperation has always engendered peace and prosperity.

a. The cooperation among great powers, after Napoleonic wars, led to 100 years of peace in Europe.

b. Cooperation of Europe with United States brought economic stability to Europe after years of great wars.

c. UN cooperation with newly independent colonial states in late twentieth century ensured their peace.

(V) Cooperation among states prevented the third world war.

(VI) History has witnessed destruction and adversity owing to competition

① the idea of 'Great Germany' led to first world war

② the competition among German and British naval power led to second world war.

(VII) Efforts of International organisations in promoting peace by means of cooperation

(VIII) Conclusion:

The world is witness of the fact the cooperation has always paved way for prosperity. Conversely competition led to chaos and adversity.
