

The Essence of Democracy

Democracy is considered the most desirable political system despite its execution challenges. What makes it desirable is how it develops human agency by upholding meritocracy. However, it demands certain prerogatives that countries often find hard to implement. Such as promoting national unity and harmony through social cohesion, strong institutions upholding rule of law, and non-discriminatory reinforcement of societal norms.