

Boosting Agriculture and its effect on Pakistan's Economy

Date _____

Introduction :

"If we are to be a nation that is truly productive, we must first be a nation that is truly agricultural", as Wendell Berry once said, connecting the agricultural productivity to overall national economic strength. Agriculture is a vital component of Pakistan's economy serving as a source of livelihood, food security and employment. According to economic survey of Pakistan 2024, agriculture contribute to 24% in Gross Domestic Product (GDP) and 37% in employment. As Pakistan's population continues to increase, we need to boost agriculture to fulfill the increasing demand of food. Agriculture can be boosted by inculcation of modern technology and irrigation methods, farming climate Tolerant crops, providing education, facilities government support policies to farmers. It is crucial to understand the relationship of agriculture and economic development. Boosting agriculture has a strong effect on economy. It not only enhance food availability but also stabilize economy, decrease rural poverty, provide create employment and accelerate industrial growth by providing raw material.