TITLE: VACATIONS AT EXOTIC PLACE CHEROKEE

The author felt a hard time in deciding an exotic place during his vacation. Meanwhile, his friend John suggested a trip to Cherokee, in the Oklahoma state. Both agreed and took flight. Their they visited Qualla Boundary, a town fabricated as paradise. Along with that an Indian village Oconaluftee, presenting the historical lifestyle of 18th century. On the Souvenir shops , they overcome the language barrier through Natives and there they met a middle – aged with fluent English man , named George and chatted till lunch time when invited for lunch at a nearby coffee shop. After the chat , they realised Cherokee's people don't depend solely on trade for survival as after the tour off – peak periods, the tribe was used to being woodcutter, fire- woodcutter, Bingo weekends on Friday afternoon etc. In the last they visited museum in Qualla Boundary where Cherokee cosmology were displayed and enjoyed all the trip.
