Constitution:-

A Constitution is set of ways on which a state runs. In other words, you can say that a Constitution defines the rules for different aspects of running the state. If we see in broader way, to run a state, you have to define the certain rule, so that the state runs smoothly. In state, there are many components of it like peoples. A Constitution defines the rights of the people and punishments for the crime. If we consider one example, anybody commits crime and we do not have any certain punishment for this crime then it's an injustice, so we make Constitution which defines the punishment for the crime, not specific only for the punishment of the crime. Constitution also define, ~~the who rule the state~~ and who is the ruler of the state and the Government and responsibilities of the different departments.

Constitution is made by the parliament of the Pakistan and then it's approved from National Assembly and then everybody have to obey it. At last, we can say that without Constitution it's very difficult to run a state smoothly.
