Brain Drain : Causes and Consequences

Experiencing brain drain can be very disconcerting for any country. Brain drain happens when the skilled person leaves his home country to find better opportunities in other countries. Many developing nations struggle with losing their most talented people. Imagine a country spend many resources to educate and train a person just to see him leave the country for better jobs, advanced educational systems, best salaries and a stable political environment in other countries. This migration effects the economy and changes the social and cultural life of home country. Countries facing brain drains experience huge effect on their growth. The causes and consequences made brain drain a global issue.
