In a small village Bihar, there lived an old man named Austin. He was known among people because of his wisdom. People would often come to him for advice. One day, a young man Kaashi came to him and started speaking about his health, wealth, hobbies and work. He was speaking continuously without thinking, without realising that he is revealing his secrets and insecurities. When he ran out of words, Austin smiled and advised him about his insecurities and bad habits which he concluded from his non-stop speaking. So, this short story points out the act of mindless excessive speaking is a sign of fool while careful and attentive listening is a choice of wise. lacks tolerance traits. He speaks because he does not know the benefits of listening. As a result, he faces consequences of excessive speaking. ~~Excessive speaking has multiple negatives~~ On the otherhand, listening is the sign of a wise person because he has capacity to accept counter opinions. Likewise, a wise man listens because ~~want to earn~~ respect and build stronger relationships.

Furthermore, a wise man listen because he is well-awared of benefits of listening. A person who lacks tolerance traits, is self-obsessed or proud of himself and wants to dominate others through excessive speaking presents himself as a fool on the otherhand, a person who listens attentively by preventing himself from shortcomings of excessive speaking labels himself as a wise person.

This statement ~~signifies~~ signifies foolishness is associated with excessive mindless speaking while wisdom is associated with listening to others' prospective. There could be many reasons which trigger a fool person to speak mindlessly but the prominent of all is the absence of mind and lack of understanding of benefits lies in listening. Whereas, a wise person avoids excessive speaking because he has sound and active mind which triggers him think before speaking. Following paragraphs will discuss, why ~~fool speaks~~ a person speaks and called as fool and what are the consequences of excessive speaking. Similarly, ~~using a person who listen is called as wise and consequences of listening.~~

A person who speaks because he possesses no courage to accept opposite opinion is often called as fool. He feels shame and illiterate by accepting counter opinion. There are many examples from everyday life where people claims themselves right or authentic and do not listen opposite views. For example, there are countless examples of religious intolerance, some unauthentic and false religious scholars first speak mindlessly without any evidence then they speak more and more to defend their stance. This behaviour shows foolishness associated with mindless speaking.

Similarly, a person who wants to control others through speaking also lies under fools category. He knows if he gave chance others to speak, they will speak to claim their rights and liberty. That's why, he himself speaks and dominate others. For instance, the patriarchal, conservative old man in family or tribes do not listen to others and speaks to impose his rules. This act clearly indicates one who speaks a lot to control others is also a fool.

Moreover, a person who lacks tolerance traits and speaks without thinking also falls under fools category. Because for temporary pain or downfall, he loses his senses and speaks abruptly.

which will indicate him as a fool. As a result, he loses his reputation and respect just because of lack of tolerance. For example, a person who came to emergency ward started yelling, shouting and saying abusive to the bus driver who hit him. His intolerance and speaking abusive is made him a fool for everyone there in hospital. Hence, intolerance is a bad trait which makes a person fool.

Furthermore, a person who is self-obsessed, has proud on his achievements and always speaks about his wealth, knowledge and profession often categorized as a fool. Because this lie under narcissistic, egoistical and self-centered perspectives. For the sake of entitlement, he exaggerates his achievements which seems as a fake and foolish attribute.
