

Exploding Revolutions

Since the outbreak of war in Gaza, the global political landscape has been gradually changing. Different countries of the world have aligned themselves either with the oppressed or the oppressor by their diplomatic move. Moreover, the role of NGOs, IOs, and other organizations has been crucial in the whole scenario. However, the outbreak of unprecedented protests in the western countries is totally unexpected. Millions of people have been showing solidarity and unwavering support to the Palestinians in the world. According to different sources, more than 300 protests have been recorded alone in Europe since October 07. The recent encampments in the different universities of the USA in favor of Gazans is part of that chain of events. The situation has been deteriorating drastically and university administration is forced to call law enforcement wings to handle the

It is time to show pragmatism and control the whole scenario via diplomatic engagement. The role of the US in this war is disappointing because it has blocked several UNSC resolutions demanding unconditional and urgent ceasefire. Global leaders must intervene to control the exploding revolutions lest the whole scenario should turn into the World War-III or any other blood-soaked revolution.
