THE ESSAY

During the 1980s and 1990s, many skilled professionals from Nigeria, including doctors, nurses, and engineers, migrated to countries like the United Kingdom and United States. The migration was driven by better working conditions, high salaries, and more advanced facilities abroad, which were lacking in Nigeria due to political instability and economic challenges. This exodus resulted in a severe shortage of skilled professionals in Nigeria, negatively impacting the healthcare system and hindering the country's overall development. This example underscores the detrimental effects of brain drain on developing nations and highlights the importance of creating a conducive environment to retain talent. Developed countries are dealing with it successfully, whereas, underdeveloped are still struggling. Unfortunately, Pakistan is one of them. The main causes behind political instability, economic crisis, unemployment, lacking of basic facilities and compromised living standard. These causes are not new but their intensity is far greater in Pakistan. Unless these causes are addressed properly, the issue of poverty can be solved. Therefore, the main aim of this essay is to discuss the causes behind brain drain along with their consequences.
