Title : Cherokee : An Exotic Escape

Last May, seeking an exciting and exotic vacation spot, the author chose Cherokee, Oklahoma, upon a friend suggestion. They visited Ovalla Boundary, a beautiful town surrounded by mountains. The town featured the Oconaluftee Indian Village showcasing 18th-century Cherokee crafts and lifestyles, and hosted the historical pageant "Unto These Hills." Despite some language barriers, friendly locals guided them to shops filled with traditional crafts. They met George who shared his past struggles as a woodcutter and how Bingo weekends now provide significant income for the tribe. Their trip concluded with a visit to museum displaying Cherokee art. The author appreciate this unique experience and looked forward to more exotic travels in the future.
