

CSS 1998 Preci's

Lie : A Grave vice

According to the author lying is a cursed vice. speech builds connection among men thus lie would receive a harsh punishment than any other crime if men understood its harms. Parents use lies to correct minor flaws of their children; consequently, lies grow with the growth of children and their tongue get use to it. Truth carries only one face unlike falsehood which have multiple forms; Pythagorean's classification of evil is same as that of lie, both are indefinite and uncertain. Author's hatred for lies is depicted in the fact that he prefers silence over a speech full of lies.

total words: 310

words in precis: 106