

^{visit} A visit to Cherokee

The Passage describes the visit of author to Cherokee. The author wanted to visit a unique place instead of going any common tourist destination. Then his friend suggested him Cherokee and for tour and author agreed. They visited "Qualla Boundary" a country in Cherokee State which was a beautiful country surrounded by mountain. They also visit there a monuments shop and saw many things such as tomahawks feathers and bonnets. They met a person there who knew English very well his name was George. George told about their livelihood and means of earning in Cherokee. At last they had a tour to museum where they explored many historical things related to art and war. Sharing his experience of tour author told it was enjoyable and next time he would like to go other exotic place like this.