

Cultivating Empathy: Essential for survival of Mankind

The only way to protect mankind is using intelligence along with love and kindness. Through this, intelligence serves as a means to upbringing social morality and responsibility, which increases the chance of survival of mankind.

But educators face various challenges to instill social morality in human beings.

Churches were given the responsibility to guard the realm of society. However, they failed to protect man from getting into seductive trap of wealth and power, resulting into spiritual decay. On the other hand, pragmatic men are only interested in keeping Machiavellian spirit alive, in which power is every thing. So, the main onus lies on educators to integrate love, kindness and empathy for the proper functioning of society.

Total Words: 275

Words Written: 85-90

