

"Forced Marriage"

Forced marriage is one of the serious issue which needs to be highlighted. It is a serious violation of human rights and affects millions of people worldwide. A forced marriage is a union where one or ~~two~~ both parties are coerced into the marriage against their will, without their full and free consent.

As a result, there are many consequences of forced marriages including emotional and psychological trauma, lack of education and economic opportunities to their children. Not only this, but also increased in domestic violence and abuse, isolation from family and friends, and limited access to healthcare and legal resources. Forced marriages are one of serious threat through which both wife and husband would not live happily.

Therefore, it is necessary to bring some strategies to combat forced marriages. There are various efforts through which one can palliate or efface forced marriages, such as; provision of education and awareness campaigns, legal protection and policy reforms, support services for victims, and community engagement and outreach programs. Aforementioned effects can be helpful in reducing forced marriages. Thus, it is better option that all countries should adopt these measures for forced marriages.
