⇒ My Last Day at College Life:

It was not easy to say something about the last day of my college life. But, my heart was palpating fastly when I wrote some memorable lines on it. It was cold morning when I early woke up and got ready for visiting my college, and that was my last visiting ever. Also there were being my last paper of final semester had been taken. In similar way I waited for college point at that cold morning. It seemed like I am little happy inside for that but largely felt disappointment because of leaving my college forever after that day. First of all, I reached college safely and go through the examination hall for attempting my last semester exam. After, the exam had been done so early, I visited to my teachers and principle room to say bye to them and made me some great wishes for the future's life. Then I came back to examination hall to waiting for my friends for some enjoyment time. All friends gathered there, then we all left for the canteen area, and had being fun and enjoyment time with each other. Secondly, at that time I was quite feeling unhappy or some sort of nervousness because it was our last ever gathering with each other after that all gone for their best career struggles. But littlely happy to enjoyed that time with classmates, and enjoyed in that way like forgetting everything that it was our last ever gathering with each other. Then played some games like; truth and love gave hard challenges to each to win that game and enjoyed a lot that time because of it never ever came again in our life.

Finally, we all visited to our old classrooms where we studied, and thought that at some time we were there and now it's all over and hardly to said bye to those memories. After, then we gave comments to each other ~~of~~ shifts, diaries and on paper with best wish of their life. After then we all left to our home with glorious memories forever.

It was hardly very tough time to left our classmates and to said by to them, and that time our eyes get full of tears. Conclusively, it was very memorable lines or story to said. When ever we focused on the past life of our college era. It was really a heart palpitating moment to thinked over it. Whenever, I had been thinking mine old memories I always remembered those days with golden era of life and got excited as well as sentiment at that time.
