

Outline

1) Introduction

2) Debunking the term "Universal Human Equality is utopic"

3) Current Status of Universal Human Equality in the contemporary era

3a) Access to education particularly in developing countries.

Case in point: Global Education index report estimates 253m people/children out of school.

3b) Prevalent Gender Equality.

Case in point: Global Gender gap closed by 68.1%

3c) Racial and Ethnic inequalities.

Case in point: Arabs in Israel, Dalits in India.

3a) Digital Divide, strips access to the digital world.

Case in point: Blockade of X in Pakistan, 80% of Europeans had internet access compared to 22% of Africans in 2022.

3e) Intolerance of one religion against another.

Case in point: Muslims in India.

4) Historical Efforts that have been made to achieve it though futile:

4a) Efforts to end women's suffrage.

Case in point: Fight for political and economic equality continues.

4b) Civil Rights Movements:

Case in point: Yet racial inequalities persist.

4c) Biased humanitarian organizations intervention in conflicts.

Case in point: People of Kashmir, Palestine Issue.

5) Way Forward

- a) Focus on equality of opportunity.
- b) Empower marginalized groups.
- c) Address systemic biases.
- d) Technological solutions.
- e) Global Cooperation and Trade Justice.
- f) Cultivate a culture of inclusion.

6) Conclusion.

The Essay.

We all strive for equality, but are we all created equal for equality? Moreover, looking into a broader perspective of universal human equality, for instance access of education in developing countries compared to ^{most of} developed ones, prevalent gender equality as the Global Gender gap is closed by 68%, Racial and Ethnic inequalities as faced by

Arabs in Israel, Dalits community in India etc, Digital divide strips access to the digital world as africans faced least amount of internet access, Intolerance of one religion against another as we can see in Indian occupied Kashmir and the concept of islamophobia. Furthermore, the historical efforts that had been made to achieve it were futile. Specifically, efforts to end women's suffrage yet till date they fight for political and economic equality, Civil rights movements like black lives matter and metoo yet they suffered from racial inequalities till today. Last but not the least are the Biased humanitarian interventions in wars and conflicts like Civil war in Syria, Kashmir Issue, and the Genocide in Gaza. This leads to the conclusion that while the pursuit of equality is a noble goal, achieving absolute and universal equality in all aspects of life is ultimately undesirable and completely a utopian concept.