Paragraph#3

In India, no one section of the community seems to miss an opportunity to go on strike. Almost everyday we read in the newspapers of some one or the other going on strike, quite often for theflimsiest reason one can imagine

Strike is a legitimate weapon of the worker to get better pay, shorter hours of work and better working conditions when all the other methods have failed. But to resort to strike because some action has been taken on an erring colleague or because some headstrong subordinate was not treated with respect, is meaningless/ Unfortunately in India the tendency to go on strike seems tobe fairly wide-spread not only among workers but also among others. The taxi-drivers go on strike if the police asks them to fix meters. Students go on strike because they feel the question istoo stiff for them to answer. Slum-dwellers go on strike because they have been asked to move into new tenements built for them Strikers are the last to realise that they are the ultimate losers in most cases. Their gains are only apparent. Increased wages may not benefit them unless they are related to increased productivity. When an employer is forced to increase his workers' wages, without a corresponding increase in production, as is most often the case, This cost of production goes up and this in turn increases the price of his product. So, though the worker mayget more, he will have to spend more to get his minimum requirements and this is what is happening today.

Tittle: Shikes in India In India # to more often to go on shirter Whether 84 8 Significant regarding to the particular matter of not . Strike Is the legitimate weapon of the workers only When their basse requirements are not fullfilled But Unfortunately, the people of India signidies of any profession die miscision the power of brickes in heir day to day affairs. These shekes are not the reliable solution. They must healized of the wages of the workers Can be Procheased but the production Outcome Broot rassed then It would be a problematic Estre for theirselves also to pay more for their product to purchase.