People moan about poverty as a great evil; and it seems to be an accepted belief that if people only had plenty of money, they would be happy and useful and get more out of life. As a rule, there is more genuine satisfaction in life and more obtained from life in the humble cottage of the poor man than in the palaces of the rich. I always pity the sons and daughters of rich men, who are attended by servants, and have governesses at a later age; at the same time I am glad to think that they do not know what they have missed.

It is because I know how sweet and happy and pure the home of honest poverty is, how free from perplexing care and social envies and jealousies—how loving and united its members are in the common interest of supporting the family that I sympathize with the rich man's boy and congratulate the poor man's son. It is for these reasons that from the ranks of the poor so many strong, eminent, self-reliant men have always sprung and always must spring. If you will read the list of the "immortals who were not born to die," you will find that most of them have been born poor.

It seems nowadays a matter of universal desire that poverty should be abolished. We should be quite willing to abolish luxury; but to abolish honest, industrious, self-denying poverty would be to destroy the soil upon which mankind produces the virtues that will enable our race to reach a still higher civilization than it now possesses.

Title: Comparison of wealth and Poverty
Some people believe that wealth brings more happiness than poverty. But in real life, a poor man's life has more significance which is missed by a rich man. It is quite pitiful that home of a rich man is full of jealousies, social events and fake care, whereas in a rich man's house there is unity, love, support and genuine care. If we look at history, many legends <sup>were</sup> born poor and the men of self reliance and eminence will spring forever from poverty. That's why we have to remove luxury, which is the cause of the destruction of major civilizations, rather than poverty, which produces virtue and honesty in society.
