These days, Pakistan is facing a serious issue of energy crises which affects its economy and cause hardship to the people. Moreover, Pakistan is short of foreign funding which help to buy oil and gas. Despite of having the reserves in Sindh, country cannot utilize them because of the developing global agreement which sets a goal to reduce global warming gases.

According to the study done by World Bank, it was suggested that Pakistan should construct dams to store water as due to global warming there is an increase in melting of ice from the mountain tops. On the other hand different governments came and did not pay attention to this programme. Assuming these conditions, Pakistan must work on renewable resources such as water, sun, wind and nuclear.
