

PASSAGE 2

We mortals live on the earth some aims to fulfill. Our aims differ from those of one another. Many of us are very ambitious for good name and fame. They want to become popular with the people. They work hard but miss many good things in life. Most of us direct our aims at making money by hook or by crook. Many hanker after money and are anxious to accumulate wealth to become millionaire. Those who have developed an insatiable greed in themselves can never satisfy it. People who have lust for wealth are never able to control it. The more they get it the more they wish to have it. Lust for wealth has overtaken and enervated us to the very core. The world is too much with us. We have clean forgotten the main objectives we are created to fulfill. They who serve humanity above self, observe moderation in all the walks of life, adore and obey commandments of God Who is their Creator, Provider and Sustainer emerge successful. He is only supreme authority Who is worthy of adoration, submission, and obedience. It is the greatest and eternal aim of human life to fulfill at all

Precis

- 1) Lust of money diverted us from real aim.
- 2) Main object of life has been forgotten.
- 3) God is worthy of adoration, submission and obedience.

Men have specific purpose of life.

Each one of us has different aims to fulfil - some live for name and fame. Some wanted to be millionaire and have never ending lust to accumulate wealth. between such aims, ~~we~~ men forget the main objective of life to be fulfilled. Those who obey the commandments of creator as well serve humanity will get <sup>real</sup> success because Allah is the only pride to be worshipped and to be valued.

PASSAGE 3

Most of the things take place according to the course of Nature. Nature has its own way to go and is bound to the will and pleasure of God. Since we are hasty and impatient, we want the things of our choice get done at our sweet will. It seems against nature and impossible to happen. Many things go their own way and they are beyond our comprehension. We merely take them for granted with our limited Intelligence, In fact, in many important matters we are utterly mistaken. Our knowledge being inadequate, we either mistake things that prove otherwise or underestimate them. With the passage of time, pretty long experience and keen observation that we come to know facts of life and importance of many everyday affairs. By taking things only by their face value, we cannot comprehend them fully, nor can we know their very spirit and composition without judging them properly. Jumping to the conclusion without verifying the facts is tantamount wild goose chase. Right approach to life, keen observation of practical matters, looking into pros and cons of the things, wise discrimination among the things, judging right from wrong, justice, equality and proportion among actions can best help us judge between fair and foul, truth and falsehood, good and evil. It is only truth that prevails and reigns supreme.

Professor Ghulam Hussain Manger

- 1) Nature plays vital role in our life.
- 2) Nature works beyond our intellect.
- 3) Don't Judge book by its covers.

Nature has major factor in our lives. Things go against our will if nature decided. We often do mistakes while dealing due to narrow of knowledge which we knew by observation and experience with time.

However, Judging things by their shallow understanding will lead us to face the consequences. Therefore balanced approach is required to judge between right and wrong, Justice and equality, fair and just. which lead us to righteousness.

PASSAGE 4

Lending and borrowing money have become common practices in our society. People borrow money and spend it lavishly just to show off and give other people impression of being well off. Most people borrow money beyond their paying back capacity and involve themselves in a net of debt out of which it is hard to get. Some people are obliged to borrow money when they badly need it. Such people deserve to be helped for it is a good deed to help the needy. Money borrowed and lent in this way is a good means to a great end. It is, in a sense, a charitable act that leads to a noble cause. In this case, lending money is a virtuous act and borrowing money is a help in distress. Both creditor and debtor stay in a good stead as long as the former holds his passions and the latter pays off the debt in time. It is a matter of good faith prompted by good intention, good will and altruism on the part of money lender.

1. Lending money is a virtue -
2. Lending is a charitable act.
3. Helping the needy by lending money -

Lending and borrowing money is a virtue and a practice in our society.

Some people borrow money to live lavishly and show off.

which make them bankrupt.

Flipside, some people are needy to borrow just to complete their needs. who are truly deserving to be helped. However, it is also a good deed and charitable act by which lender can bring prosperity in society by taking people outside of distress -

out