4. Conclusion

⇒ "We cannot seek achievement for ourselves and forget about the progress and prosperity for our community.... our ambitions must be broad enough to include the aspirations and needs of others, for their sake and for our own."

These are the words of a famous American activist Cesar Chavez which explains that prosperity and progress of a country is important for the prosperity and happiness of its citizens. Unfortunately ^{Pakistan} is facing so many socio-economic challenges like economic crisis, political instability, corruption, lawlessness and injustice, terrorism, un-employment and many more. In order to tackle these rising challenges, Pakistan has to adopt a few immediate pathways that can lead to its prosperity. The major pathways that can make Pakistan a prosperous country are economic development, educational reforms, providing timely and equal justice, controlling corruption and agricultural reforms. Unless we take these steps into action, Pakistan can neither become prosperous nor respectable.
