

Title: Refinement of Rural Areas is the foundation for Development

Rural development is the base of any fruitful development and to aware the people about advancement because of more population growth in rural area than urban area. As villages people deprived from basic social and economic needs of life ratherless having much ability of doing work. So, to aquire their dream life they migrated towards cities which destroy the rural development and prosperity owing to migration of capable villagers. Therefore, the rural area must be provided with all modern facilities that lead to increase in production, improvement of standard of living and overall prosperity of country.
