

CSS Precise 2010

Solution of Envy

Being a victim of the most unfortunate attribute of human nature, envious person feels unhappy from what others have and tries to deprive them from that blessing without putting himself in any deprivation. If this ^{envious} malicious ^{behaviour} ~~malicious~~ is not controlled, it may cause damage to the societal norms. An envious man keeps himself possessed with illogical questions which can jeopardize others skills & talents. However, the envious nature can be deteriorated through the habit / act of admiration. The only cure of envy is happiness but the envious person finds it difficult to become happy while feeling jealous. Anyways, finding the root cause of envious feeling is itself a positive beginning towards curing it.

Word count: 1128

Total words: 348

CSS Precise 2017

The Destruction Caused by the Ambitious People

According to the writer, all the evil in this universe is committed not by the lazy ones, but by the people who are always busy in achieving more, without knowing what to achieve and do not prefer to spend leisure time. The writer condemns these ambitious people by holding them responsible for the real chaos in the universe. If these emperors, kings, archdukes, statesman, generals, journalists and statesman would have spent their time lying on the hillside, enjoying the weather and tobacco, instead of planning wars, this world would be at greater peace. Same is suggested for the religious

Scholars and their followers who are busy in discussing women's dress code and the volume of dance bands, if they simply lay and stare at the night sky, it would be rather better for their mental health. and this world.

Word count: 140

Total words: 435

CSS Precis 2011

Causes of Unhappiness

All the psychological causes of unhappiness have something in common. An ordinary unhappy man is usually the one who failed to satisfy his urge in adulthood and starts to give undue attention to it by putting his life on one trajectory that leads to the only path of achievement. Some people chooses to find happiness by using negative means like drinking which takes away their unhappiness for a few moments. Such people have given up a hope in their life. Another type of people are those who intentionally choose unhappiness over happiness. Such people are very rare. They enjoy being unhappy because they think life has nothing to offer and they even take pride on this attitude which puts the ordinary people in confusion.

Total words: 391

Word count: 122